MOUNT PLEASANT, WESTMORELAND COUNTY, PA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1906.

NO. 44.

ELECTION TALE WILL BE TOLD TUESDAY NEXT

When the Pennsylvania Voters March to the Polls.

REPUBLICANS WILL WIN WITH EASE
IF THEY STAND UP AND SIMPLY COUNT NOSES.

On the Other Hand the Democrats and Other Followers of Emery are Putting on a Bold Front, Claiming They Not Only Have a Look in but will Land Inside the Breastworks all Right. The Unterrified Also Expect to Pull Something Through in the County.

On Tuesday next, November 6th, this state will elect a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Auditor General and Secretary of Internal Affairs, Westmoreland and Butler counties a Congressman and this county a Prothonotary, District Attorney, Clerk of Courts, Jury Commissioner and five members of the Legislature, two in this district and three in the Second district. If numbers on the go-in count, Republicans will come out of the battle of ballots with all the spoils and they are not a bit slow about claiming everything in sight on sort of general principles.

The followers of Emery; that is to say, Democrats, fusionists and others, are also coming down the homestretch to the election wire with flags flying and to all appearances confident of their ability to again turn the trick that last year landed Berry in the state treasurer's chair. They are not, of course, saying much about their standard bearer having been formerly identified with the G. O. P.; but, they do keep pegging away at the cost of the new state capitol and have, it must be admitted, compelled their friends, the enemy, to make numerous explanations which, in politics, are looked upon as evidence of weakness. Still, Stuart and his fellow candidates on the Republican state ticket ought to win easily and will, too, if the independent element in the party stays with them.

Congressman Huff, the Republican nominee in this district, looks to be on Easy street as his party has a big majority in Butler as well as in this county. Westmoreland Republicans seem to be no way concerned about their county ticket, feeling confident it will go through all right as a whole, and there is good reason for this complacency. But the Democrats are not without hope of being able to save something from the wreck. Eicher, that party's candidate for District Attorney, and Kalp, of this place, for the Legislature in this district, are both putting in their best ticks and their friends say that both have good chances of winning.

LADIES OF GOLDEN EAGLE.

A New Temple to be Instituted Here on November 8th.

At a preliminary meeting of the prospective local temple, Ladies of the Golden Eagle, called by Past Templar Sam. Koen, of Allegheny, the roll call showed 53 members present. The new order was named Mount Pleasant Temple. The following officers were elected:

Past templar, Miss Myrtle Carbaugh; noble templar, Miss Annie Hitchman; vice templar, Mrs. C. Skiles; prophetess, Miss Hattie Armstrong; priestess, Mrs. Dora McCracken; marshal of ceremonies, Miss Bertha Swanson; guardian of records, Miss Ethel Carbaugh; guardian of exchequer, Mrs. Mary E. Lohr; guardian of finance, Miss Erma Walker; guardian of music, Miss Annie Houli; guardian of inner portal, Miss Edna Armstrong; guardian of outer portal, Miss Ethel Hitchman; representative, Miss Myrtle Carbaugh; trustees, for 18 months, Mrs. D. M. Brown; for 12 months, Mrs. Otis Emel, for 6 months, Mrs. Lillian Green.

The institution of the temple will take place on next Thursday evening, November 8. All applicants who signed the petition, and were not present can come in at that date, on which all applicants must be present or their names will not be among the charter members. They also can bring any friends they care to have join.

Price of Booze Advanced.

Beginning today, the price of booze in Connellsville has been advanced. According to notices posted in the bar-rooms there Monday last local bottled beer will cost 15 cents a bottle and beer brewed outside of Connellsville 20 cents, while no bonded whiskey will be sold over the bar in single drinks.

COMERS AND GOERS.

Paragraphs About Prominent People Gathered During the Week

Miss Ethel Hurmiz, of New York, is here visiting Miss Ruth Kobacker.

Miss Anna K. Stoner has returned from a week's visit paid Pittsburg and Braddock friends.

Miss Belle Clark, of Pittsburg, spent several days here the past week with Miss Fern Braddock.

Miss Ida Hicknell, of Tarr, has returned to Findlay, Ohio, to resume her studies at Findlay College.

W. S. Groff, now a member of the Dever Realty Company, Pittsburg, was here over Sunday with old friends.

Mrs. H. Goldstone, baby son and daughter left Tuesday on a two weeks' visit to be paid Philadelphia friends.

REV. JOHN S. HAMILTON

WHO WILL CONDUCT EVANGELISTIC SERVICES HERE NOVEMBER 6-25.

John R. Black and his daughter, Mistress Helen, of Darlington, Pa., were here several days last week visiting that gentleman's mother.

Mrs. Catharine Gibbs, of this place, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret, to Mr. Dwight B. Cooper, of Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Martha Thornley and her son, Edwin, of Pittsburg, were here this week visiting that lady's sisters, Mrs. John T. Tarr and Mrs. William Bowers.

Governor Pennypacker and his party, when here for the dedication of Company E's new state armory on November 10th, will be entertained at dinner by Mrs. Elizabeth Hitchman.

Mrs. Lloyd B. Huff and the Misses Armstrong, of Greensburg, came over here Tuesday in the first named lady's automobile and spent the day as the guests of Mrs. James S. Mack, of North Diamond street.

Mrs. Jane Seese, of Petersburg, Illinois, widow of the late Jacob Seese, and her daughter, Mrs. Ella McCully, of Springfield, that state, spent several days here last week with the former's sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Shupe.

J. LLOYD KALP

A MOUNT PLEASANT BOY WHO DESERVES A SOLID HOME VOTE.

Victims of the Rail.

Pennsylvania railroad trains claimed two victims Saturday. John McNierney, of Greenawalt, aged 45 years, was hit at Donahoe and died soon after being taken to the Greensburg hospital. William Croft, of Grapeville, aged 63 years, was run down at Jeannette and instantly killed.

New River Bridge.

The commissioners of Westmoreland and Washington counties met Friday at Donora where it is intended to erect a bridge across the Monongahela river. They approved the plans for the structure and gave notice that bids would be advertised for within 60 days.

DEDICATION OF COMPANY E'S ARMORY.

An Outline of the Program For November 10th as Prepared by the Committees in Charge and Chief Marshal Loar.

MOUNT PLEASANT WILL THEN HAVE GREAT DOIN'S.

Mount Pleasant is going to have great doin's going on when Company E's new state armory is dedicated on November 10th. Contractor Hurst's men are putting the finishing touches on the handsome building and the S. P. Zimmerman Company is right on his heels with the furniture; while following close are the carpet people and other firms that are supplying the different other things that will go to make up the best equipped home of the kind in the state. As will be seen by the list of contributors given below, the finance committee is still shy on the $2,500 it is expected to raise, but it has no reason to feel discouraged, believing it will get there all right when it shall have been completed a canvass of the town, a work that is now only fairly under way.

Captain J. A. Loar, the chief marshal, announces that, following a free dinner for all soldiers, young and old, the parade will form at 1:30 p. m. on Eagle street, with the right resting on West Walnut street, in the following order: Chief marshal and aids, mounted police, Connellsville cornet band, Governor Pennypacker and members of the State Armory Commission in carriages or automobiles, Robert Warden Post, Grand Army of the Republic, and visiting old soldiers in carriages, Mount Pleasant drum corps, Spanish-American war veterans, First battalion, Tenth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, Mount Pleasant cornet band, Mount Pleasant Fire Department, Bob Goodman's little drum corps and civic societies.

The line of march will be by South Eagle street to South Church, to East Washington, to South Silver, to East Main, to Duncan Plan, countermarch on Main to Morewood, to West Washington, to Eagle and thence to armory where ranks will be broken and where the exercises will immediately follow. The opening number of the program there will be the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by 200 public school children.

COKE AND COAL.

Items of Interest Gathered From Both Mine and Yard.

The Adah coke plant near Cheat Haven has been sold by L. W. Gemas and R. W. Dawson to Uniontown and McKeesport men for $50,000. The purchasers have formed the Adah Coke Company with these Uniontown men as officers: McClellan Leonard, president; J. A. Strickler, secretary, and R. W. Dawson, treasurer.

An invention that may revolutionize the manufacture of coke is an oven just perfected by T. J. Mitchell, general manager of the interests of the W. J. Rainey Coke Company, and placed in operation at that company's Mt. Braddock plant. The device, which is four feet wide and thirty feet long, will make it possible for four men to charge, water, draw and convey to the cars the coke from 100 ovens where forty to fifty men are now employed.

The coke workers in this district will be given a half holiday on November 10th to permit of them attending the dedication of Company E's new state armory here.

The People's Coal Company has 2,200 acres of coking coal in South Fayette county and a corporation has been formed to handle this product. The Allison farm surface, on the Connellsville Central, near Brownsville, about 100 acres, was purchased some time ago and 400 ovens will be built there. Engineers are on the ground now making the location.

It is said that the B. & O. road is preparing to extend a feeder from West Newton towards Greensburg to further develop the coal field of that section.

Anticipating a famine, Connellsville custom coal dealers have advanced prices one cent a bushel, the rate at the mines now being 6 cents for lump; run of mine, five cents, and slack, four cents.

Father Monda Acquitted.

The state department has notified the Fayette county authorities that Father L. A. Monda, the Italian priest who fled from Connellsville after being released on bail on charges of rape and murder in connection with the death of little Rosa Rendine's illegitimate child, has been acquitted by a court in Italy for lack of evidence. The Rendine girl was convicted of concealing the death of her child, but had sentence suspended.

AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Three Guaranteed Attractions at That Popular Place of Amusement.

"My Wife's Family" a most amusing musical comedy and a guaranteed attraction. will be here Saturday evening next, November 3.

John W. Vogel's Minstrels, the old reliable show but bigger and better than ever this year. will follow Monday evening, November 5. Manager Goldsmith's personal guarantee also goes with this company, of which, following its appearance there, the Johnstown "Democrat," of October 22, says: "To those who like minstrelsy Vogel affords a delightful entertainment. His fun makers this year are entitled to a place among the best in the business. The aggregation is very strong on singers. Harry Leighton caught on decidedly. The olio was well selected and every number was one of merit. The theatre was crowded at both performances and the people present voted the attraction a good show."

The big musical comedy, "The King Bee," is booked for Wednesday evening, November 7. Gordon & Bennett's big scenic production, "The Warning Bell," will be given Friday evening, November 9th.

The Annual Hospital Bazaar.

The bazaar, held annually by the Ladies Aid Society for the benefit of the local hospital, was brought to a successful close in the bank and trust company building Saturday night, after having been continued three evenings. Over 1,100 most excellent suppers were served, from which the receipts, combined with the sales in the different booths, netted the fair management $600. The booths took in $273.50. The society is especially grateful to friends for nice donations.

Striking Telephone Linemen.

The executive board of the Tri-State Telephone Company and representatives of the striking linemen held a conference at Uniontown Friday and the company refused to treat with the men. The company refused to accept the wage scale submitted by the strikers and the latter declare they will now fight the company to a finish. This trouble has greatly interfered with its business here.

JOHN M. HAWK

The Republican Candidate for County Clerk of Courts.

The Republican candidate for clerk of courts, John M. Hawk, is, strictly speaking, the business men's representative. He has always been an ardent Republican, although he has never appeared on the scene of "practical politics." He was born in Greensburg and comes of a family of hardy pioneers in Western Pennsylvania, being a descendant of Ludwig Otterman, one of the first settlers of the land now occupied by Greensburg.

He was educated in the excellent public schools of Greensburg and when a youth engaged with Lucian and O. J. Clawson as a clerk in the grocery business.

His whole life, from errand boy to owner, exhibits those sterling qualities so important and necessary in a successful ful and popular public official. He has the commanding traits that warrant success. When elected he will carry the habits of his business career into the office and the public may look for a clean and competent administration of the office he seeks. His integrity is unquestioned, and his conduct in life clean and exemplary. These professions give the best assurances of usefulness.

JOHN M. HAWK.

It may be said of him that he is the first in a large family relationship to seek public position. His people assisted in the formation of the party, supported it through years of defeat in Westmoreland, and his friends, recognizing his meritorious claims, supported him at the primaries. He is a Republican, he is honest and competent, and reflects credit on his party, his position and himself.

SIGN OF THE CROSS.

Items of Special Interest to Local Church Goers.

The forty-hour devotion opened at St. Joseph's Catholic church Thursday morning at 9 o'clock with a procession of 200 children, followed by high mass. The rector, Rev. Father O'Donnell, was assisted in the solemn service by Revs. Fathers Danner, of Everson; Sylvester, of St. Vincent, and Siwiec and Piazza, of this place.

PROF. JOHN R. BURSK

SOLOIST WHO WILL ASSIST EVANGELIST HAMILTON HERE.

As already noted the union evangelistic services, to be conducted by Rev. John S. Hamilton, of Cleveland, Ohio, assisted by his soloist, Prof. John R. Bursk, will open in the Re-Union Presbyterian church Tuesday evening next, November 6, and continue until November 25. These services were to start Sunday next, but at Rev. Hamilton's request he will not begin the work until Tuesday, remaining here three days longer.

Rev. C. W. Haines will preach at the First Baptist church Sunday morning next on "Growing in Grace."

Rev. E. R. Deatrice will conduct Harvest Home service at St. John's at 11 a. m. Sunday next, preaching at the First church, Mount Pleasant, at 7 p. m. Catechism will be held Friday evening at 7 o'clock in town and at 2:30 Saturday afternoon and 10 a. m. Sunday at St. John's.

BUTLER COUNTY SIZING UP OF COLONEL HUFF

The Republican Congressional Nominee in This District

AS EXECUTED BY THE BUTLER RECORD

A LEADING PAPER AMONG OUR POLITICAL BEDFELLOWS.

Colonel Was Over There the Other Day Looking After His Fences and his Presence Leads to the Publication of an Article That is Full of Well Deserved Compliments For our George as a Faithful and Efficient Public Servant.

[From the Butler County Record.]

Col. George F. Huff, Republican candidate for Congress in this district, was in Butler yesterday and met large numbers of his constituents and staunch supporters for re-election.

As all know, Colonel Huff is now serving his second term in Congress as the representative of Butler and Westmoreland counties, and in that capacity his course has been so satisfactory to the people of the district that no reasonable doubt exists of his return to the National legislature for another term. With a man of his ability, the experience gained by his four years' work will add largely to his influence in the House and his power to render valuable service to his constituents and to the nation.

That Mr. Huff is a man of sound common sense and great ability in practical affairs is evident from his successful business career as well as from his work in Congress. And that he has a strong sense of justice and regard for the rights and solicitude for the welfare of those with whom he is connected by industrial or political relations is equally manifest in both cases.

In his whole business life, while managing large industries and employing in the aggregate many thousands of men, Mr. Huff has never had a difference with his employees. Always willing to give every man "a square deal," labor troubles have been unknown in his experience, and he is recognized by the industrial circles of the nation as a friend of the laboring man.

While in Congress, Colonel Huff's best efforts have been directed to the service of his constituents without distinction of party, creed or condition in life. He has been a warm friend of rural mail delivery, working for the extension and perfection of the system. The interests of the old soldiers disabled in their country's service have been his special care, and from these he has letters, written without solicitation or suggestion on his part or that of his friends, recognizing his effective work in their behalf. No other man whose name is before the public is as well qualified to serve the people of the district during the coming two years as Colonel Huff.

Patrick Kelly's Funeral.

The funeral services of Patrick Kelly, the Standard yard boss who died at the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg, were held in the Polish Catholic church Friday morning by St. Joseph's rector, Father O'Donnell, in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and sorrowing friends. The interment followed in St. Joseph's cemetery. Two extra conveyances were used to haul the beautiful flowers given by late fellow employees at Standard and the local Knights of Columbus.

Beals-Bryar.

Mr. Roy B. Beals, of Pittsfield, and Miss Margaret Bryar, one of Morewood's fair daughters, were married on October 17th at Greensburg by Rev. S. B. Mae, taking a B. & O. train the same evening for Meyersdale where they spent several days with the groom's parents. On last Wednesday evening they returned to the bride's home at Morewood where they were tendered a reception by a large company and a serenade by the local drum corps and bag pipers. Following a splendid repast the evening was spent in social enjoyment with an orchestra to furnish the music.

Case Dismissed.

Justice McWilliams dismissed the case against Harry Anderson, the East End public school pupil, the prosecution attempting to send him to Morganza as an incorrigible. Mr. McWilliams' written opinion was that a late act of Assembly forbids justices of the peace making such disposition of persons under 16 years of age. In addition to that he held the evidence in this case was insufficient, to say nothing of the absence of a petition from either parent or guardian as required by law.

EXPLAINS EVERYTHING

Leader Fred Von Miller Returns to Latrobe and Rights Himself Regarding Tenth Regiment Band Property.

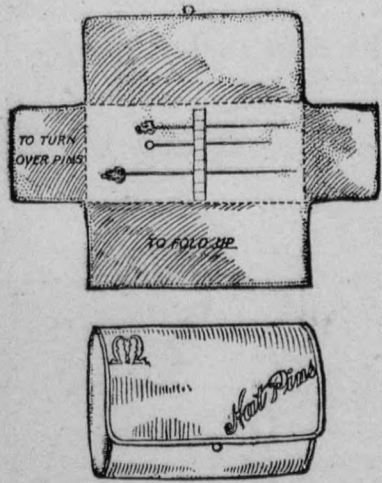

SUIT OF LARCENY BY BAILEE WITHDRAWN.

The suit charging Fred Von Miller, leader of the Tenth Regiment Band of Latrobe, with larceny by bailee of state property, has been withdrawn by the prosecutor, Balzar Schnable, as Miller returned and made a satisfactory explanation which, it is claimed, sets at rest the ugly stories that had been afloat regarding the latter's actions.

And for the alleged neglect of the state property, Mr. Miller said that the uniforms which Captain Kline, of Company I, had found mildewing in a cellar, were the old uniforms which have been discarded by the state and which have been taken off the charge books. The new uniforms said Mr. Miller are packed up and in good shape.

Christmas Presents Which Are Easily Made at Home

THERE are reminders all about of the near approach of Christmas, but I wonder how many women have their present list anything like filled out? Of course we all intended this year to take "time by the forelock" and failed, perhaps, as usual. A hatpin case is a useful present for the woman who travels, as it keeps the pins together and prevents their loss—a great consideration in these days of elaborate and expensive hatpins. The case may be carried out in any material you like. Its measurement is that of the ordinary hatpin, allowing an inch for the reception of any extra long ones. The design in the cut shows the case open and closed, and as it may contain as many pins as you like your own discretion must be the guide as to its width. A ribbon strip inserted down the middle and divided into sections serves as a receptacle for the pins, which are prevented from slipping out by the flaps on the ends. The top comes down over the case when folded and is fastened with a small button and loop. The edges are bound with ribbon, silk cord or braid, according to the material used for the case. The initials of the owner and the word "Hatpins" embroidered on the front give a pretty finishing touch to a charming little gift.

HATPIN CASE.

Handkerchief Box.

Among the vast number of home-made presents there is none likely to be more useful than a dainty box to stand on one's dressing table in which to throw handkerchiefs and veils. Such a box requires only patience and neat fingers to be turned out very quickly. In the first place, four strips of rather substantial cardboard are cut to the size required, for the front, back and sides of the box, as well as two squares for the bottom and lid. These are then duplicated, the second set of pieces being cut a fraction larger than the first. Cover the pieces of cardboard with Louis brocade silk—a design with a large figure placed in the center of the cover is most effective. Cover the inner pieces of cardboard with a pretty plain silk. The silk is glued to the cardboard. When thoroughly dry the two sets are fitted together back to back and slipstitched to one another, so that a neatly lined box is the result. Unless the inner strips are a little smaller than the outer ones they will not fit properly. The lid is covered first with a padding of cotton sprinkled with sachet powder.

Attractive Dollies.

Plain butcher's linen or the richer damask makes the prettiest plate dollies if a pretty scallop is worked around with mercerized or the dull finish embroidery cotton.

Get the plain damask, as good a quality as you can, and have several stamped, or make circles by drawing a pencil around a plate and apply or adjust a single scallop to it, repeating until you come out even all the way around.

Padded scallops are prettiest. If you and with a piece of cotton that you use for the embroidery your scallop will show off well after laundering, even if the pieces are a little in the way of handling they must necessarily receive.

Two Pretty Gifts.

The cleverest way of marking handkerchiefs is to embroider the whole of the first name, as if it were written on, carrying the signature of the person for whom you are doing it as nearly as possible. Embroider over a thread for padding.

A new opera bag may be made of gold or silver cloth, gathered at the top with square rings, crocheted in gray for silver, yellow for gold, green for green colored, silver or gold cloth, and so on. In a very short time this may be decorated with a small design of silk and bead embroidery.

New Handkerchief Bag.

Have you seen the handkerchief bag? It is just shown in the shops. To make it for Christmas requires two flat disks crocheted of silk and beaded, about three inches in diameter. Join these flatly together, leaving an opening at the top. This quaint little affair, which looks like an exaggerated beaded watch and may be any color desired, is swung from the belt, with my lady's little lace handkerchief tucked therein. And, in truth, tiny as the kerchief is, it just fills the bag.

FOR CHRISTMAS.

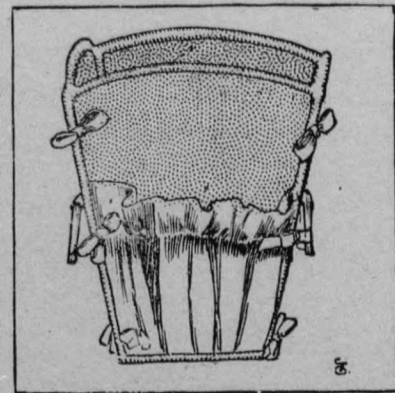

Useful and Dainty Little Gifts—How They Are Made.

Somewhere tucked away in the bureau of that prodigy whom the rest of us long to believe purely mythical—the girl who is always ready for every occasion—are the first of her Christmas gifts, carefully laid in tissue paper, with some delicate, sweet smelling powder as accompaniment. For the foolish virgin who is apt to put off her gift making until the last moment the following suggestions may be of value:

A Bureau Basket.

A bureau basket is one of the collapsible creton covered wastebaskets in miniature. It is not more than three inches high, and both sides and base are made and finished separately and joined by narrow ribbons. The basket is left empty for the various little things or is partly filled with tape measure, scissors, thimble and emery.

On one side (outside) is a pocket, gathered on an elastic; on another is a fat pincushion, and a third has a needlebook. The fourth is left plain so that the basket may be set flat against the back of the bureau.

Like a number of other things, they may be quite elaborately got up of silks ornamented with tiny flowers and fitted out with all the tiny belongings or they may be made of bits of creton, small patterns being best.

Kodak Film Case.

A unique and at the same time very useful souvenir which one may make to give to a kodak faddist is a film case. Use four pieces of cardboard, 6 by 8 inches, and cover them with brown linen. On the outside of one cover embroider the word "Films" in attractive script and with effective colored silk. Upon the reverse side outline a graceful spray of blossoms and work the monogram of the prospective recipient. To these ornate covers tie six envelopes with a harmonizing shade of ribbon, threading it through the flaps, also acting as a hinge to hold the covers. These envelopes should be lettered separately with water color paints upon the address side, "Contents," "Dates," "Incidents," "Scenes," "Persons," etc.

Workbag Apron.

For the woman who is expert at em-broidering a workbag apron is just the thing. A square of muslin or china silk is trimmed all around with a narrow edging of lace, preferably valenciennes. In the center a large circle is outlined with beading, run with ribbon. When the worker is ready to put away her embroidery she drops the articles in this circle, and when the trimmings are drawn a dainty workbag is the result.

Baggage Tag Case.

Have you ever been able to locate baggage tags when you most wanted them? Save your friend from a misfortune of this kind by making her a case in which to place the tricky pests. In shape this case reminds one of a rather large, old fashioned watch pocket, except that it would be square were it not for a point at the top of the case.

BAGGAGE TAG CASE.

A slightly stiffened coarse tan canvas goes into its manufacture. One piece about eight inches long and four inches wide is pointed at the top. A pocket half the depth of this foundation piece is attached, and both pieces of canvas are bound with half inch satin ribbon. Tied into the pocket with baby ribbon are a half dozen baggage tags. On this pocket flap and on the top of the foundation are sprays of flowers done in water colors. The particularly pretty case is made of tan canvas, bound with lavender ribbon and adorned with violets. Loops of ribbon are sewed at the top as a hanger.

A Bachelor's Pincushion.

Fill a brier or cherry wood pipe with cotton wool or bran and over this gum a little piece of velvet. Next take three yards of baby ribbon and wind it carefully round the pipestem, tying a small bow at each end. Stick some pins in the cushion part, and the result is a dainty trifle, very novel and easy to make for the bachelor's Christmas.

Great Animal Trainer.

Leslie—That baldheaded Thompson is simply great at training animals. Stewart—Oh, he is a wonder. He has actually taught a couple of spiders to keep the flies off his head.—Judge.

She didn't have the face to do it.—Leslie's Weekly.

Merely Theoretical.

"Who is that extremely plain woman over there by the window?" "That's the lady who lectures on the evils of the kissing habit."—Houston Post.

The Last Revenge.

So you're the last fly!

Well, why

Do you keep coming,

Humming,

Annoying me so?

You know,

Though you may be late,

Your fate

Will be just as bad.

I've had Enough of your kind!

Now, mind,

You buzzers must go

And so

Goodbye to you, fly—

You die!

FAYETTE SENSATION

Caused by the Arrest of D. Ross Anderson,
Former Bank Cashier, Charged With Embezzlement.

DEFENDANT GIVES $5,000 BAIL FOR COURT.

One of the greatest sensations ever created in Fayette county occurred last Wednesday morning when D. Ross Anderson, former cashier of the First National Bank, of Masontown, was arrested by United States Officer George F. Owens, of Pittsburg, on seven charges, five for falsifying the records of his bank, one of embezzlement and one of making and publishing a false quarterly report and inducing three directors of the bank to sign it. Anderson's shortage will reach from $30,000 to $35,000.

Anderson, on being taken to Uniontown, was released on $5,000 bail for his appearance at court. He has confessed to a shortage of $19,000 and assigned his property to the bank.

Passengers.

WOMEN ARE TRAMPLED UPON

Scores of Insensible Forms Scattered
About Ship's Deck When Officers
With Revolvers Drive Back
Furious Herd.

Charged by terror mad bulls in the midst of a hurricane that threatened at any moment to send the ship to the bottom, passengers on the Italian steamer Massilia had a frightful experience during a recent voyage. More than thirty passengers were injured, some of them so seriously that they were still suffering when the vessel arrived at New York.

Captain Murl of the Massilia reported that a terrific gale swept the decks of the liner, and everything that had not been fastened down was washed over the side. Of the 523 passengers more than 200 were women. All the passengers were sent below, as nothing was safe on the decks.

When the storm was at its height six large Italian bulls broke their fastenings. There are alleyways running under the hurricane deck connecting the fore and after decks. Through these the bulls ran and dashed over the whole deck.

The crew had started to round up the bulls when the electric light wires broke beneath in the steeage compartments, and there was a blinding flash like an explosion.

The noise, coupled with the howling of the hurricane, the pounding of the heavy seas and the tramp of the bulls on the decks, terrified the passengers, who now thought they were going to be burned at sea.

They smashed hatchets, brushed away the sailors gathered at the openings to drive them back and came pouring up on deck, carrying crucifixes and other emblems of worship. They demanded money of the officers that they might make offerings to the Madonna for the quieting of the waves. So great was their fright they fought among themselves like madmen, striking and tearing at one another.

The crew had managed to get the bulls into a far corner of the ship and in a few moments more would have had them tied fast, when all of a sudden a woman with a flaming red head-

THE BULLS, BELLOWING, SWEEP OVER THEM. dress became conspicuous. Attracted by the bright color, the bulls charged the crowd.

Those directly in the path of the animals sank upon their knees and uttered prayers for safety as the bulls, bellowing as loudly as the hurricane, swept over them. Back and forth through the battered and bruised mass of human beings the mad beasts ran, trampling under foot men, women and children, till scores of insensible forms were lying about in heaps, presenting a gruesome spectacle.

An unusually large wave hit the deck where the animals were. They caught the full force of the impact. Two were dashed across the port rail, where their legs were broken, and they fell to the deck, adding their cries of pain to the other noises. The other four were hurled forward and sent crashing against the fore-castle peak. They lay stunned, and before they could get up the members of the crew that had not lost their wits ran to them and with ropes got them under control.

A crate containing twenty-four chickens was smashed by the water, and the fowls, released, flew, cackling and frightened, among the passengers, adding to the confusion.

In the midst of the cries of the passengers, lying helpless or crawling about the decks, Captain Michaelo Carluano, royal Italian commissioner, got together twenty-six of the crew, whom he ordered to procure revolvers. Thus armed he placed himself at their head and drove the passengers slowly back till he got them below deck and quelled their panic.

DIED IN RIVER IN EACH OTHER'S ARMS

Lovers' Clasp Unbroken When Their Bodies Are Found Floating In the Delaware.

With their arms clasped about each other and an expression of perfect serenity on their faces the bodies of Gustave J. Kathke, Jr., and Ella Miller, his sweetheart, were found in the Delaware river off Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

The parents of both supposed that they had eloped. There had been much opposition to the match on the part of the girl's mother, but after Gus and Ella disappeared last Tuesday night the two mothers had a heart to heart talk and decided that the best thing to do was to forgive and bless the children when they returned.

While this family conference was going on the two corpses, clinging as tightly to each other in death as the boy and girl had clung in life, were being washed up and down in the tides of the Delaware.

ANGLER HOOKS DEAD FRIEND

Makes Startling Catch While Fishing
From Pier In North River,
New York.

Thinking that he had caught a fish off pier 50, North river, Samuel Young of 59 Bedford street, New York city, pulled in his line and found that he had hooked the dead body of his life-long friend, Gustav Johnson, forty-five years old, of 763 Greenwich street.

Johnson, who was a cook on a tugboat, was reported missing to the police of the Charles street station on Saturday. His friends did not suspect that he had been drowned.

When Young drew in his line and saw the face of his friend he almost fainted.

Coroner Acritelli made an investigation, and as there was nothing suspicious about the case he gave permission to bury the body. Johnson had no relatives in New York city, and he will be buried by friends.

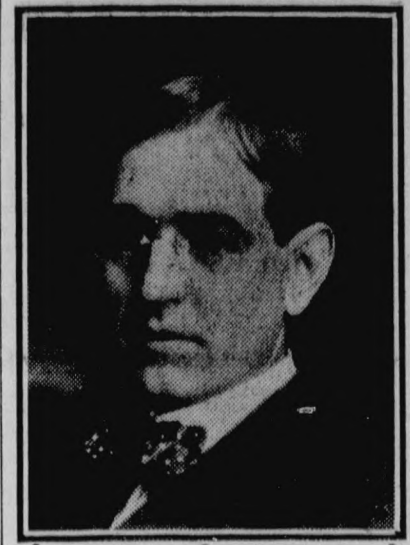

Killed by a Kiss.

Miss Nan Bryant, a pretty girl of Graniteville, S. C., died at a hospital in Atlanta, Ga., in consequence of having been kissed with undue force by her lover, Theodore Barton. Miss Bryant and Barton went walking, and when she returned her cheek was bleeding. She said that she had scratched a pimple. Blood poison developed, and she was taken to Atlanta for treatment. Then the girl confessed that the wound was inflicted by her lover while he was kissing her. "Theodore kissed me," said the girl, "and once playfully bit my cheek. He bit harder than he intended and caused the wound."

His friends say that his experience fits him in every way to fill the office to which he aspires; while he promises, if elected, to give the county a clean administration.

DREAM SHOWS HIM HIS WIFE'S SHAME

New Yorker Gets Divorce on Evidence
He Saw In His Sleep.

Through a dream so vivid that by it he was able to procure positive evidence of his wife's infidelity, John J. Curry, a former candidate for alderman in the Thirtieth assembly district of New York city, has been granted a divorce decree by Judge O'Gorman of the supreme court.

Curry, depressed by his marital troubles, spent a great deal of his time in solitude in his home at Fortieth street and Ninth avenue. One night he dreamed that his wife and a man were about to depart to a secluded country spot. He saw them at the railway station, he saw the train pull out, he saw them arrive in North Bergen, N. J.; he saw them in a room in a hotel in that place.

Jarred into a conscious state by the vividness of his vision, Curry, with several friends and detectives, followed the chain of visionary evidence and, according to his statement, found his wife in a compromising position in a hotel in the town pictured in his dream. Curry denounced his wife. The man, as the dream picture had depicted, was, according to Curry's affidavit, William Bradley of Union Hill, N. J.

Curry immediately instituted divorce proceedings for which he had hitherto been in possession of insufficient evidence. Curry asserts that he will soon bring suit for $10,000 against Bradley, who is reputed to be wealthy.

Subscription, $1.50 a Year, Payable in Advance.

Mount Pleasant has within its borders a population of over 5 000; while more than double that number of people live immediately around about and for them it is the natural center as shown by a postoffice distribution of over 15,000. It has both Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroad branches and will soon be given the main line of the Coke Region Trolley System. It is completely surrounded by coke plants and has in the town Bryce Brothers Company's big tableware glass factory, the Mount Pleasant Tool Company, Husband Company's planing mill, Galley Bros' carriage factory, foundry, brewery, distillery, pop plant, two flouring mills, 13 Protestant and 3 Catholic churches, Mount Pleasant Institute, 2 large Public Schools and 3 Parochial schools.

There is coal in abundance at the town's gates and the same is true of electricity and natural gas for heat, light and power. All of which things, when taken in connection with the best water system in Western Pennsylvania, make Mount Pleasant's numerous manufacturing sites ideal.

NEXT TUESDAY'S ELECTION.

If party lines are closely drawn at the election on Tuesday next the Republicans will win in state, district and county; if the independent voter in that party gets busy on the other side, there will be a different tale to tell, despite the fact that the candidates from Stuart down are, personally, clean men, even though they were nominated by so-called machine methods.

The Democrats are making all the thunder they can out of the machine rule in the state, but the cost of the new state capitol is their big gun and the one with which they expect to do the most execution. They preach that the original cost of this magnificent pile was to be met by the $4,000,000 appropriation made by the Legislature, and then point to the $13,000,000, the sum taken from Father Penn's pocket to cover the total cost when the "trimmins" were put on.

And when all is said and done, the number of converts made by this expounding of Emery and Berry doctrine remains to be seen.

RAILROAD CONCESSIONS.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces that, beginning today, the maximum rate for one-way ticket over its lines east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo will be reduced to two and one-half cents per mile.

Beginning same date the Interchangeable Thousand Mile Refund ticket, now sold for $30 with a refund of $10, will be sold for $25 with a refund of $5, when used in accordance with the conditions. As at present, this ticket will be good in the hands of the original purchaser only.

The sale of thousand mile tickets, good for any one and any number, on the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad only east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo, will be continued at rate $20.

The "Pennsy" is gradually coming to its "oats" and there is reason to believe that other concessions will follow to meet the demands of the traveling public before the next session of the Legislature makes them for the road.

THANKSGIVING.

President Roosevelt has just proclaimed Thursday, November 29th, Thanksgiving and well says, after citing the prosperity unparalleled in the history of the American people, that material well-being, indispensable though it is, can never be anything but the foundation of true national greatness and happiness. For, as the President continues, if we build nothing upon this foundation, then our national life will be as meaningless and empty as a house where only the foundation has been laid.

Upon our material wellbeing then must be built an upperstructure or individual and national life lived in accordance with the laws of the highest morality, or else our prosperity itself will in the long run turn out a curse instead of a blessing. We should, as the President adds in conclusion, be both reverently thankful for what we have received and earnestly bent upon turning it into a means of grace and not of destruction.

THE WILY JAP.

For the past week or more alarmist papers have had this country, if not on the verge of war with Japan, at least mighty close to it, and all because Japanese pupils have been excluded from the regular public schools of San Francisco and compelled to attend a public institution of learning set apart especially for the children of such foreigners. Aaron Artman, president of the stricken city's board of education, has this to say: "The position taken by the board was for the best interests of the public schools of San Francisco and in strict conformity with the state laws. We believed that the best interest of the schools would be subserved by sending children of Japanese parentage to a separate school. If we have erred, and can be shown wherein we have done so, the board would be more than pleased to correct its mistake, if any has been made."

It is also interesting to learn that these so-called "children" of the always wily Jap are 20 and 21 years of age and, while California will have to conform its educational ideas to meet the will of the general government if her action in this case conflicts with any provision of our treaty with Japan, the danger of war is entirely too remote to cause us worry on the eve of an election.

HAPPENINGS AT HOME

For the Past Week Briefly Mentioned.

LITTLE TALK OF THE TOWN
THAT WILL BOTH INTEREST AND ENTERTAIN

A Department in Which the Local Editor Holds High Carnival and Works off his Surplus Energy in Condensations That Deal Solely with Matters Relating to Mount Pleasant

December 1st has been fixed for the institution of free mail delivery here.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Bryce have taken possession of their pretty new home on Orchard Hill, East End.

A dozen or more local Knights of Malta paid their Wilkesburg brothers a fraternal visit Monday evening.

The local hospital people suffered from the cold Sunday until late in the afternoon when the steam heat reached them.

John Bowman, of this place, has been honored with the presidency of his '07 class at the Western University of Pennsylvania.

A son and heir was born Mr. and Mrs. David Henderson, of Uniontown, Friday. The proud mother was Miss Clelia Knox, of this place.

The Presbyterian Hallowe'en social, held at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Pigman Tuesday evening, was a very enjoyable affair.

James Lewis, colored, was pulled in by the police here Saturday night for disorderly conduct. The prisoner had been pretty badly beaten up.

The Fire Department received its new hook and ladder truck and 600 feet of new hose Tuesday. The truck, which is in every way complete and up-to-date, is a beauty.

The natural gas supply almost played out here Monday forenoon owing to a break in the main line near Uniontown. Connellsville and Scottsdale consumers had the same trouble.

The Husband Lumber Company is booked for night work at its East End planing mill for the balance of the year, and even at that there is no assurance that all orders can be met.

Shaw & Son, the contractors on the new Polish parochial school building, are working double turn on that handsome North Hitchman street structure in order to beat out cold weather.

Mrs. W. H. Miller on Saturday last lost her hand purse containing some change, a child's ring and a pair of white silk gloves. The finder will be welcome to the money if the other articles are returned.

The local young America got busy Monday evening with chalk, continued the performance with corn Tuesday evening and wound up the Hallowe'en season last night with innumerable pranks.

Old Mount Pleasant friends of James Hoke, Sheriff Seanor's veteran clerk, will regret to learn that he is laid off with a very sore foot got Friday by running a rusty nail in that member while trying to catch a pet coon.

A Kecksburg correspondent says that a new coke plant is to be built on the Honse or Lemmon farm in Mount Pleasant township, the railroad connection to be an extension of the B. & O. branch to the Duncan Plan in the East End.

As the committee in charge will have several hundred extra invitations for the dedication of Company E's new state armory, contributors to the fund can have friends remembered as long as the supply holds out by leaving a list at this office.

The students, with the assistance of others, will give a literary and musical entertainment at the Mount Pleasant township high school Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, November 9 and 10, the proceeds to be used to pay for a piano.

Professor Huffman, principal of the local public schools, charged before Justice McWilliams with assault and battery for the whipping he recently gave Harry Anderson, an East End pupil, has waived a hearing and given bail for court.

Charles Cummings, while helping the Wadsworth boys to haul a big load of Ridge timber to town Saturday, fell off the heavily laden wagon near Acme and was run over. Both legs were broken, one in two places. He was brought to the hospital here.

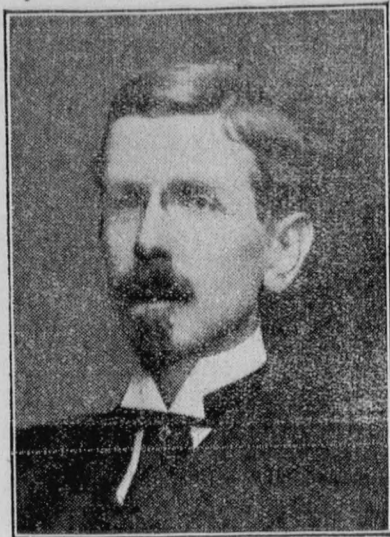

The local High School football team went to Uniontown Saturday to play their fellow students there. Owing to some misunderstanding, however, there was no game. The local students will play at Scottsdale Saturday next, while the Institute team will tackle Uniontown tomorrow.

George Crise, whom John Brinker, the local dairyman, charged with larceny of corn in the field before Justice McWilliams, brought a cross suit before Justice Rhoades, claiming that the milk man had been guilty of larceny by bailee of some farm implement belonging to the prosecutor.

JOHN F. WENTLING, JR.,

The Republican Candidate For District Attorney of This County.

John F. Wentling, Jr., whose portrait appears below, is the Republican candidate for District Attorney. His father, with whom he read law and under whom he was admitted, just before his service of one year in the war in the Philippines, has been a well known and eminently successful lawyer at the Greensburg Bar for forty years. Mr. Wentling does not depend on his father's reputation, but he has been in active practice with his father in both the civil and the criminal courts of this county ever since his admission to the bar. The name Wentling stands for Republicanism because the father and sons have always stood for the party; and while the father never would accept a nomination for any office, he has been the adviser of the Republican organization for all these years, and for many years, even up to the last campaign, went out and made addresses to urge the Republicans to do their duty.

There is no excuse for any Republican to be against Mr. Wentling, the candidate, and there is no excuse for any Democrat to be against him, for the name Wentling has always stood for a square deal to every man and all that is right and just in politics or in business.

You Don't Have To

Sometimes when there is sickness in the family and a physician has been called in and a prescription written, you have noticed the name of some particular druggist printed on the paper on which the doctor wrote the prescription.

This does not mean that you are compelled to take your prescriptions to the druggist whose name appears on the paper.

It is recognized the world over that a patient has the privilege of taking the prescription to any drug store that he prefers.

The prescription department in our store is always watched over by a graduate and registered Pharmacist, and doctors' prescriptions are always filled exactly according to the way they intended they should be filled.

Stick to the Handle

You get more facts about easy running right at the crank of a separator than by listening to talk. If a separator turns easily, the crank tells you so as soon as you touch it. I am selling the lightest running cream separator made—and it's the best every way you look at it. It's

The Sharpless Tubular.

The Tubular is the cleanest skimming, most durable, easiest to wash separator made. The waist low can save your back—the enclosed gears can't pinch your fingers—the self oiling device saves time, uses the oil over and over and prevents dripping on machine or floor. The Tubular skimmed 2½ to 9 times cleaner than any other in a National Clean Skimming Contest.

The Tubular is a money-maker and a labor saver—it increases the butter money 25 to 100 per cent. and lessens the work of handling milk about one half. Bring your wife in to see it. She'll say it is the easiest to wash. Let me give you a catalogue with a lot of good things in it.

Fayette County Jury Finds for A. Overholt
& Company in all Their Suits
For Insurance.

BUT THE DEFENDANTS ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

After deliberating but twenty minutes, the Fayette county jury at Uniontown that heard the extended arguments over the liability of the thirty-one insurance companies, which held policies covering the Broadford warehouse of A. Overholt & Company, destroyed by fire last November, returned a verdict last Wednesday for the full amount, $99,244.30, with interest for eight months. The plaintiffs have, however, applied for a new trial.

The suits originally numbered 60 for an aggregate of $167,500, but of this number 19 were settled. The main point of the argument between the opposing forces was whether the actual cost of the burned whiskey should be taken into consideration or the market value of the product.

Old Zeb White, The Possum Hunter

He Tells of the Old Woman, Who Fought a Wildcat to Death.

[Copyright, 1903, by Ruby Douglas.]
"FOR five years after we was married it was a question whether I was gwine to run the old woman or she was gwine to run me," said Zeb White, the old possum hunter of Tennessee, one evening as we sat on the doorstep of his cabin smoking our pipes. "I was twenty-two and she was twenty when we jined up, and we both thought we knew a heap. We soon began to differ about this and that. It wasn't quarrelin', but jest differin', which isn't exactly the same, but had 'nuff. The mo' we differed the mo' we wanted to, and it finally came about that we couldn't see nothin' with the same eyes. I ain't allowin' that it was my fault at all, but that it come about through the perversity of woman. She was tryin' to be boss when the Lawd never intended that she should be."

"As I said, this went on for five years, and then it had a mighty sudden endin'. I hain't gwine to admit that I caved in and took a back seat, but I reckon the old woman has had her way mostly since that date. We was sittin' in the cabin doan one evenin' when we heard the report of a rifle on the mountings, and the old woman speaks up and says:

"I reckon that's Bill Shafter shootin' at a wildcat."

"It's mo' likely to be Joe Sellin' shootin' at a b'ar," says I.

"I consider to reckon you are wrong."

"And I consider to reckon I'm right."

"Pears to me I heard a wildcat scream about half an hour ago."

"And it pears to me I heard a b'ar growlin' jest afore the shot was fired."

"Zeb, what's the use o' your hangin' to the b'ar like a mewl?"

"Ain't you hangin' to the wildcat jest the same?"

"You see how silly and senseless it all was," said the old man, with a smile. "I might have known that the Lawd made woman to have the last word and that the thing for me to do was to shet my head, but in them days I couldn't see it. I kept talkin' back, and blueby we got purty mad at each other. I don't reckon nuthin' much would have come of it if she hadn't flung out about a wildcat chasin' me into the cabin one night. It was a fact. I had been out in the woods huntin' our cow and didn't have so much as a knife with me, and when I heard that catawaulin' I picked up my foot and traveled. It allus made me mad to think of it, and when the old woman softly smiled and hinted that some wildcats was too much for some men I frothed up and answered back that I had seen a chipmunk make her turn pale and tremble and that a half grown coon could run her out o' the cabin any day."

"Just then what should show up down there by the hoxpen but a powerful big wildcat. It was between sundown and dark, and I could see every hair on her body. I reckon she'd been hunted off the mountings, for she looked mad all over. She wouldn't have come a-nigh us if left alone, but she wasn't to be left alone.

"'Befo' the Lawd, but look at that cat and my rifle not loaded and not a grain of powder in the house!" I groaned.

"'Yes, purty fair sized cat, as cats go," says the old woman as keekless as you please.

"'Her pelt is wuth $2, and we can't git it!"

"'We mought if there was a man around the house."

"'Hain't I yere?"

"'Reckon so, but you hain't tacklin' cats, you know."

"'And mebbe you are!" I shouts, mad 'nuff to box her ears.

"'Yes, mebbe I are. Zeb White, you was sayin' that I turned pale at the sight of a chipmunk. I'm gwine to show you that it takes a heap bigger thing to skeer Tilda White. You kin light up your pipe and look on."

"'What you gwine to do, Tilda? I says."

"'Git that cat's pelt," she says as she rises up and walks over that way.

"I stands up and calls to her to come back, but she laughs and keeps right on. I ran into the cabin for my knife, and while I was gitlin' it she picks up a club and walks straight for that cat.

"Lawd, stranger, but I was nigh skeered to death. I wouldn't have attacked that varmint armed with the best knife in all Tennessee for anybody's thousand dollars. I'd a heap sooner tackled a b'ar with a cabbage stock."

"The perversity of woman was mighty plain yere. Because I had twitted the old woman of bein' afraid of coons and chipmunks she was gwine to tackle the wickedest varmint of the forest and that almost barehanded. Upon my honah, sah, she walks right up and gives the cat a whack with the club, and next instant the fount was on. It was club ag'in teeth and claws. Of co'se I started to mix in, but when Tilda saw me there she says:

"'Zeb White, this hain't any of your fuss, and you keep out."

"'But he'll chaw ye to death," I shouts.

"'Keep away, and give me a fair show!"

"There was the durndest mixup you ever saw. The boldness of the attack sorter rattled the cat, but she wasn't runnin' away by any means. She clawed and spit and yowled and bit, and though I tried my hardest to get my knife into her, I couldn't do it. She and the old woman was too much mixed up. I'm a-tellin' you that that was the awfulest fight that ever took place in this yere state. A woman with only a club was fightin' a thirty-five pound wildcat and standin' right up to her work! Her clothes was bein' torn to fragments, and she was bein' clawed and bit, but she never wavered. Folks have said that I ought to have helped her mo', but every time I mixed in it seemed to me that she'd get the knife instead of the cat if I struck."

"How did it end? Waal, sah, that fount lasted fifteen minits, and then of a sudden the cat rolled over and lay still. I ran and put my knife into her, knowin' she was only stunned, and then I looked round for the old woman. She stood there with the club drawn back over her shoulder and her eyes blazin'. It was not till I took the club out o' her hands and told her that the cat was dead that she fainted away. Lawd, but she was a sight to see. She hadn't skeercedly a rag left on her, and she was all bite and claw marks. Them four marks on her face was made by claws, and they hain't only about four out of a hundred. The cat used her teeth eighteen times."

"When I come to look for damages on the other side I found that the cat had two ribs broken, an eye put out, one of her legs broken and her jaw fractured. That last blow had landed fair on her head and knocked the senses out of her. When the news of the fount got round more'n a hundred people called to hear the particulars, and the folks in this county made up a purse of $50 in cash for Mrs. White. She was in bed for two months and limpin' round for two more, but mebbe her sufferin' was wuth it. Folks hain't got through praisin' of her yet, and about every two years the papers publish her picture and tell all about the fount. Besides?"

"Besides what?" I asked as the old man paused and hitched around uneasily.

"Waal, to tell you the dog's truth, the old woman has sorter been best man round yere since that fount, and things look as if she meant to keep it up to the end."

"In co'se I does—in co'se," observed Mrs. White as she appeared in the door at that moment. M. QUAD.

RUPTURE And RECTAL DISEASES

When I first announced years ago that I was prepared to cure Rupture, Piles, Fistula, etc., without the use of the knife, without danger and without detention from work many people were skeptical. But experience has proven that truth is mighty and will prevail. The first patient I cured sent another, the next another, and all talked with gratitude of what I had done for them, so that today I have the largest practice in the country treating Rupture and Rectal diseases exclusively. If you will put aside prejudice and skepticism and ignore what others say long enough to investigate my work, it will mean a brighter, healthier and sounder life in future. If you are a sufferer call on me or send for my free illustrated book explaining thoroughly my system of treatment.

These three understood each other exactly. By inadvertence the conversation had touched on a topic concerning which Brand was always either vague or silent. Both girls were quick witted enough to know that Constance's mother was never willingly alluded to either by the lighthouse keeper or by the elderly Mrs. Sheppard, who looked after them in infancy and was now the housekeeper of Laburnum cottage.

Constance was annoyed. How could she have been so thoughtless as to cause her father a moment's suffering by bringing up painful reminiscences! But he helped her, being master of himself.

He adjusted a switch in the instrument.

"I had no difficulty in constructing a diaphragm which would intercept all sounds," he said. "The struggle came when I wanted an agent which would distinguish and register a particular set of sounds, no matter what additional din might be prevalent at the same time. My hopes were wrecked so often that I began to despair, until I chanced to read one day how the high tension induction coil could be tuned to disregard electrical influences other than those issued at the same pitch. My anxiety, until I had procured and experimented with a properly constructed coil, was very trying. I assure you."

"I remember wondering what on earth it was," volunteered Enid. "It sounded like a mathematical snake."

"And I am sorry to say that even yet I am profoundly ignorant as to its true inwardness," smiled Constance.

"Yet you girls delight in poets who bid you hearken to the music of the spheres. I suppose you will admit that the ear of, say, Ben Pollard is not tuned to such a celestial harmony. However, I will explain my auriscope in a sentence. It only listens to and indicates the direction of fog horns, sirens and ships' bells. A shrill steam whistle excites it, but the breaking of seas aboard ship, the loud tapping of a propeller, the noise of the engines, of a gale, or all these in combination, leave it unmoved."

"I remember once, when we were going from Falmouth to Porthalla in a fog, how dreadfully difficult it was to discover the whereabouts of another steamer we passed en route," said his daughter.

"Well, with this little chap on the bridge, the pointer would have told the captain unerringly. I don't suppose it will be thick while you are here, or you would see it pick up the distant blasts of a steamer long before we can hear them and follow her course right round the arc of her passage. It is most interesting to watch its activity when there are several ships using their sirens. I have never had an opportunity of testing it on more than three vessels at once, but as soon as I could deduce a regular sequence in the seemingly erratic movements of the indicator I marked the approach and passing of each with the utmost ease."

"Would that stop collisions at sea?"

"Nothing will do that, because some ships' officers refuse at times to exercise due care, but with my instrument on board two ships, and a time chart attached to the drums, there would be no need for a board of trade inquiry to determine whether or not the proper warning was given. To the vast majority of navigators it will prove an absolute blessing."

"You clever old thing!" cried Enid. "I suppose you will make heaps of money out of it."

"The inventor is the last man to make money out of his inventions, as a rule," said Brand. "I suppose I differ from the ordinary poor fellow inasmuch as I am not dependent for a livelihood on the success of my discovery."

"There's not the least bit of chance of there being a fog tonight?" queried Enid so earnestly that a wave of merriment rippled through the room.

"Not the least. In any event, you two girls will be in bed and sound asleep at 10 o'clock."

"Perish the thought!" cried Constance. "Bed at 10, during our first and only night on a lighthouse!"

"You will see," said her father. "You cannot imagine how the clock dawdles in this circumscribed area. Work alone conquers it. Otherwise, men would quit the service after a month's experience."

"Ship ahoy!" screamed Enid. "Here comes the Lapwing round Carn du. Mr. Lawton must have lent her to bring the relief. How kind of him!"

"The Lapwing cannot approach the rock," said Brand. "I will signal 'Landing impossible today.' It will save them a useless journey."

He selected the requisite flags from a locker, the phrase he needed being coded. Soon the strong breeze was trying to tear the bunting from the cordage, and though they could not hear the three whistles with which the little yacht acknowledged the signal, they could easily see the jets of steam through their glasses.

Constance happened to overlook the table on which stood the auriscope.

"This thing has actually recorded those whistles," she cried in wonder.

"What sort of whistle has the Lapwing?" asked Brand.

"A loud and deep one, worthy of a leviathan. It was a fad of Mr. Lawton's. They say his siren consumes more steam than his engines."

Her father laughed.

"Anyhow, he is sticking to his course," he announced. "I may as well take in the decorations."

Undauntedly, but much flurried by a sea ever increasing in strength as the force of the ebb tide encountered the resistance of the wind, the Lapwing held on. With wind and sea against her she would have made slow work of it. As it was, there was help forthcoming for both journeys unless the wind went back to the north again as rapidly as it had veered to the southwest.

She would not be abreast the rock for nearly an hour, so Brand left the girls in charge of the lookout while he visited the oil room. A wild night such as he anticipated demanded full pressure at the lamp. If the air became supersaturated, breakage of the glass chimneys might take place, and he must have a good stock on hand. Water and coal, too, were needed. The double accident to Bates and Jackson had thrown into arrears all the ordinary duties of the afternoon watch.

Naturally the pair in the lantern found the progress of the yacht exasperatingly slow.

"A nice Lapwing," said Enid scornfully. "I will tell Mr. Lawton he ought to rechristen her the Bantam. All her power is in her crow."

When Brand joined them matters became livelier. More accustomed than they to the use of a telescope, he made discoveries.

"The two supernumeraries are there," he announced. "but I cannot see Lawton. Indeed, so far as I can make out, she is commanded by Stanhope, dressed in Ben Pollard's oilskins."

"He has left Lady Margaret?" cried Constance.

"He never went home!" essayed Enid.

"Poor chap! He was going to take us for a drive tomorrow," said Constance.

"To Morvah," explained Enid, with a syllabic emphasis meant for one pair of ears.

"It is very nice of him to struggle on and have a look at us," said Brand. "He can come close enough to see us, but that is all. Our small megaphone will be useless."

Indeed the Lapwing dared not approach nearer than the Trinity mooring buoy. By that time the three, protected from the biting wind by oilskin coats, were standing on the gallery. The reef was billowing up at them with a continuous roar. A couple of acres of its surface consisted of nothing more tangible than white foam and driving spray.

Stanhope, resigning the wheel to a sailor, braced himself firmly against the little vessel's foremast and began to strike a series of extraordinary attitudes with his arms and head.

"Why is he behaving in that idiotic manner?" screamed Enid.

"Capital idea—semaphore—clever fellow, Jack," shouted Brand.

Abashed, Enid held her peace.

The lighthouse keeper, signaling in turn that he was receiving the message, spelled out the following:

"Is all well?"

"Yes," he answered.

"Bates and Jackson reached hospital. Bates compound fracture. If weather moderates will be with you next tide."

"All right," waved Brand.

The distant figure started again:

"L-o-v-e to E-n-i-d"

Enid indulged in an extraordinary arm flourish.

"A-n-d C-o-n-s-t-a-n-c-e."

"That spoils it," she screamed. "It ought to be only kind regards to you, Connie. I believe you are a serpent, a—"

"Do stop your chatter," shouted Brand, and he continued the message:

"Weather looks very bad. Little hope for tonight. Lancelot due at 6. Will see personally that no chance is lost. Goodby."

"Goodby," was the response.

The Lapwing fell away astern from the vicinity of the buoy.

"Why is he doing that?" asked Constance, close to her father's ear.

"He is too good a sailor to risk turning her in that broken water. A little farther out there is greater depth and more regular seas."

They watched the yacht in silence. At last her head swung round toward the coast. When broadside on a wave hit her, and the spray leaped over her masts.

"That gave them a wetting," cried Brand, and his calm tone stilled their ready fear. Indeed, there was greater danger than he wanted them to know, but the Lapwing reappeared, shaking herself and still turning.

"Good little boat!" said Brand. The crisis had passed. She was headed, at full speed, for the bay. And not too soon. Ere she reached the comparative shelter of Clément's island she was swept three times by green water.

Inside the lantern, their faces ruddy with the exposure, their eyes dancing with excitement, the girls were voluble with delight. Could anything be more thrilling than their experiences that day!

"That semaphore dodge is too pro-

BAD MINE EXPLOSION.

Seven Were Killed and Two Badly Hurt in the Cambria Mill Pit at Johnstown
Last Wednesday Morning.

THE TRUE CAUSE MAY NEVER BE KNOWN.

Seven men were killed and two are in the Cambria hospital as the result of an explosion in the Cambria mill mine at Johnstown last Wednesday afternoon.

The dead are Sampson Luther, aged 30, shot firer; Constant Fish, aged 45, loader; Adam Pavlovsky, aged 25, cutter; Joseph Kamelsky, aged 34, loader; Frank Gavick, aged 30; Mike Sulada, aged 19, loader; Joseph Patrick, aged 64, scraper.

The injured are Joseph Flack, laborer, and Mike Borovochik, Slav. Both were overcome by afterdamp.

The true cause of the accident will probably never be learned. The officials of the company will make a thorough investigation, but unless they find matches or some smokers' supplies in heading No. 29, it will be most difficult to locate the cause.

ous to be lost," cried Enid. "Connie, you and I must learn the alphabet. You shall teach us this very evening, dad. Fancy me signaling you the whole length of the promenade: 'Just look at Mrs. Wilson's bonnet,' or 'Here come the Taylor-Smiths. Scoot!' Oh, it's fine!"

She whirled her arms in stiff jointed rigidity and mimicked Stanhope's fantastic posing.

"Why should you scoot when you meet the Taylor-Smiths?" asked Brand.

"Because Mrs. T.-S. hauls us off to tea and gives us a gallon of gossip with every cup."

"I thought your sex regarded gossip as the cream?"

"Sex, indeed! Old Smith is worse than his wife. He doesn't say much, but he winks. One of his winks, at the end of a story, turns an episode into a three volume novel."

"It seems to me I must teach you the code in my own self defense," he replied. "And now for tea. Let us have it served here."

They voted this an admirable notion. The girls enlivened the meal by relating to him the doings and sayings of current interest ashore during the past two months. By a queer coincidence, which he did not mention, his relief was again due within a week, just as on the occasion of Enid's first appearance on the rock. The fact struck him as singular. In all probability he would not return to duty. He had completed twenty-one years of active service. Now he would retire, and when the commercial arrangements for the auriscope were completed he would take his daughters on a long promised continental tour unless, indeed, matters progressed between Stanhope and Enid to the point of an early marriage.

He had foreseen that Stanhope would probably ask Enid to be his wife. He knew the youngster well and liked him. For the opposition that Lady Margaret might offer he cared not a jot. He smiled inwardly—as the convenient phrase has it—when he reviewed the certain outcome of any dispute between himself and her ladyship. He would surprise her.

Brand the lighthouse keeper and Brand urging the claims of his adopted daughter would be two very different persons.

Of course all Penzance knew that he was a gentleman, a scientist in a small way and a man of means. Otherwise Constance and Enid would not have occupied the position they held in local society. Those unacquainted with English ways oftentimes make the mistake of rating a man's social status by the means he possesses or the manner of his life in London. No greater error could be committed. The small, exclusive county town, the community which registers the family connections of many generations, is the only reliable index. Here to be of gentle birth and breeding—not bad credentials even in the court of King Demos—confers Brahmanical rank, no matter what the personal fortunes of the individual.

Brand, it is true, did not belong to a Cornish county family, but there were those who conned him shrewdly. They regarded him as a well meaning crank, yet the edict went forth that his daughters were to be "received," and received they were, with pleasure and admiration, by all save such startled elderly mammas as Lady Margaret Stanhope, who expected her good looking son to contract a marriage which would restore the failing fortunes of the house. All unconscious of the thoughts flitting through his brain, for Brand was busy trimming a spare lamp, the two girls amused themselves by learning the semaphore alphabet from a little handbook which he found for them.

When the night fell, dark and lowering, the lamp was lighted. They had never before seen an eight wicked concentric burner in use. The shore light-houses with which they were acquainted were illuminated by electricity or on the catoptric principle, wherein a large number of small Argand lamps, with reflectors, are grouped together.

To interest them, to keep their eyes and ears away from the low water orgy of the reef, he explained to them the capillary action of the oil. Although they had learned these things in school, they had not realized the exactness of the statement that oil does not burn, but must first be converted into gas by the application of heat. On the Gulf Rock there were nearly 5,000 gallons of colza oil stored in the tanks beneath, colza being used in preference to paraffin because it was safer, and there was no storage accommodation apart from the lighthouse.

Requiring much greater heat than mineral oil to produce inflammable gas, the colza had to be forced by heavy pressure in the eastern right up to the edge of the wicks and made to flow evenly over the rims of the burner, else the fierce flame would eat the metal disks as well.

He read them a little lecture on the rival claims of gas and electricity and demonstrated how dazzlingly brilliant the latter could be on a dark, clear night by showing them the fine light on the Lizard.

They were cheerful as grigs over it.

"But in hazy weather the oil wins," he said, with the proper pride of every man in his own engine. "Fishermen sailing into Penzance along a course equidistant from the two points tell me that if they can see anything at all on a foggy night they invariably catch a dull yellow radiance from the rock, while the Lizard is invisible. The oil has more penetrative power. Its chemical combination is nearer the mean of nature's resources."

At the proper time he banished them to the kitchen to prepare dinner, a feast diverted from the hour of noon by the chances of the day. He adopted every expedient to keep them busy, to tire them physically and mentally, to render them so exhausted that they would sleep in blissful calm through the ordeal to come.

As he could not leave the lamp, and they refused to eat apart from him, the dinner, in three courses, was a breathless affair. Going up and down five flights of stairs with soup, joint and pudding, while one carried the tray and the other swung a hand lantern in front, required time and exertion. They were cheerful as grigs over it.

Enid, whose turn it was to bring up the plates of tapoca, pleaded guilty to a slight sensation of nervousness.

"I could not help remembering," she said, "what an awful lot of dark iron steps there were beneath me. I felt as if something were creeping up quickly behind to grab me by the ankles."

"You should go up and down three times in the dark," was Brand's recipe. "When you quitted the door level for the third ascent you would cease to worry about impossible grabs."

Constance looked at her watch.

"Only 8 o'clock! What a long day it has been!" she commented.

"You must go to bed early. Sleep in my room. You will soon forget where you are. Each of the bunks is comfortable. Now I will leave you in charge of the lamp while I go and lock up."

They laughed. It sounded so homelike.

"Any fear of burglars?" cried Enid.

"Yes; most expert cracksmen—wind and rain and—sleet," he added quietly.

"I must fasten all the storm shutters and make everything snug. Don't stir until I wake you in the morning."

"Poor old dad!" sighed Constance. "What a vigil!"

He was making new entries in the weather report when she remarked thoughtfully:

NEWS FROM OUR NEIGHBORS.

ALVERTON.

Jacob Stroh, Sr., has been confined to his bed for several weeks.

Rev. A. Auld, the new Methodist Episcopal pastor, will move here as soon as he can secure a house.

Speaking of houses reminds the writer of their scarcity in Alverton this fall.

Rev. W. H. Guyer, of Barkeyville, who succeeds Rev. W. J. Umstead as pastor of the local Church of God, has brought his family here to reside.

Miss Mamie Ball, of near town, handsomely entertained a few of her Alverton and Scottsdale friends the other evening.

Mesdames W. A. Byars, Charles Parry and Wm. Hill were among the last Alverton visitors at the Pittsburg Exposition.

WOODDALE.

Mrs. J. R. Rishbegar, of this place, and Mrs. Edward Diebolt, of McClure, spent one day last week in Greensburg with the former's daughter, Mrs. John J. Jones.

Miss Cora Christner left Tuesday for Connellsville to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. Jacob Berg.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Christner spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rishbegar.

Mrs. D. W. Glassburn returned Friday evening from Des Moines, Iowa, where she spent some time with her sister.

Most of the young folks of this place attended the spelling at the Cross Roads Friday night. Olive Yothers is the teacher.

Miss Vura Rishbegar spent Monday afternoon in Scottsdale shopping.

HAMMONDVILLE.

Mrs. Maggie Leonard, of Connellsville, was a welcome over Sunday guest at the home of her brother, C. S. Hebenhall.

Miss Laura Mull, of Wooddale, is a pleasant house guest with her sister, Mrs. Charles Mason.

"Neighbor" Gray is furnishing the people of this vicinity with an excellent quality of bituminous coal.

Vernon Washbaugh dispatched a valuable cur last week. The canine was rabies.

Campbell Yothers has begun to slaughter his choice spring lambs. He intends to supply the village folk with fresh mutton during the next fortnight.

Charles Wadsworth was in our village recently looking after the affairs of his farm.

Ira Pershing's merry-go-round was rendered unfit for use last Wednesday night by the wind. Several long rents were made near the center pole, but all is "O. K." now.

Lillie Boyer and Lillian Hebenhall are ill with tonsillitis.

The spelling bee at the Geary school was a grand success. The teacher was unable to find words in the adopted spelling books sufficiently intricate to outwit the pedagogues who had come from far and near. Webster was then taken and Prof. R. A. Nedrow won the laurels.

Alex Reckner is busily engaged putting in a supply of fuel for the winter. All people who have coal stoves should put in a supply of fuel while the roads are fit for travel.

Buckwheat cakes and sausage meat are encompassed daily by some of our residents.

JONES MILLS.

The Progressive Brethren church held love feast Sabbath evening last which was not very largely attended on account of the inclement weather.

Amos Miller lies at death's door at this writing. The best medical skill of Western Pennsylvania has done all that can be done. The sympathy of a wide circle of relatives and friends is his in his anguish.

Mrs. Ed. J. Friedline and three little daughters spent a few days last week visiting relatives in Mount Pleasant township.

Mrs. John Barnhart and son Wayne, of Mount Pleasant, spent Sabbath with Mrs. Sue B. Neiderhiser.

The new M. E. minister made a pleasant impression upon his audience when he first preached here a week ago.

Our local school is doing well.

LAURELVILLE.

Poor Director Hamel and wife returned home Wednesday evening from Polk, Venango county, after stopping off with Pittsburg relatives on their way home.

Miss Sadie Horner returned Saturday from a week's visit paid Miss Birdie Nixon, of Knoxville, a Pittsburg suburb.

Charles Cummings, son of Mrs. Al. Miller, of this place, is in a serious condition at the Memorial hospital with both legs broken, due to being kicked by a mule under a heavily loaded lumber wagon which passed over him Saturday evening.

Mrs. Mattie Calhoun, of Denver, Colorado, is here paying her sister, Mrs. W. H. Myers an extended visit.

Miss Cora Myers was visiting the past week with school chums in Uniontown.

Friends of M. S. Brothers, who met with a serious misfortune Monday last one week by a ladder breaking and throwing him to the ground, badly fracturing the base of his skull, will be pleased to learn of his release from the Mount Pleasant hospital, and will be able to go to work soon.

B. F. Myers leaves Saturday for Waynesboro, Franklin county, where he will engage in work for the winter with the Guiser Manufacturing Company. He will spend Sunday with Rev. Mr. Beery, of Tyrone, Pa.

Mrs. W. A. Miller, who has been an intense sufferer from neuralgia for years, is again critically ill at her home here.

PIKE RUN VALLEY.

This cold spell makes some of the farmers talk about butchering.

David Stout, wife and family, of Kecksburg, visited friends at this place and Back Creek the past week.

Mrs. Saul Sheets and son and Mrs. Edward Beistel, son and daughter spent last week with the ladies' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Geary.

Harry Newingham and Mr. Zimmerman, of Pleasant Unity, passed through here one day last week with a nice lot of chestnuts.

Misses Agnes Geary and Lottie Hostetter were Sunday guests of Miss Lela Kalp.

There was quite an excitement in town Saturday morning when Mrs. — left but in about an hour and a half she returned with Mr. —.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sleasman have returned after spending the summer near Ligonier.

Mrs. Bertha Lowry spent part of last week with her sister, Mrs. A. J. Bowman.

Simon Tinkey, wife and family were guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Amos Critchfield, last week.

HECLA.

Miss Florence Schmidt was a Greensburg visitor Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Crumpton and Mrs. Skelton and son Wilber, of Turtle Creek, spent several days of this week with Mrs. Mary Bailey.

Thomas Carhart, of Wilkesburg, was a Sunday visitor here.

A carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Stouffer and daughters, Misses Alice and Martha, was backed down a very steep embankment near D. Madeline's store, Sunday morning. The horses became frightened at a street car. Fortunately no one was injured, the carriage only being slightly damaged.

S. F. Miller spent Tuesday with South Fork friends.

Mrs. Kistner, of Scottsdale, spent Sunday with Mrs. Charles Sanerwein, of this place.

Mrs. Maud B. Herr, a nurse in the City Hospital at Fairmont, W. Va., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Worthington, at this place.

NEW STANTON.

Walter Evans, of St. Louis, Mo., is spending his vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller have returned from an extended trip over the Allegheny mountains.

Friends of Miss Annie Sweitzer will regret to learn that she is in the Greensburg hospital suffering from an attack of typhoid fever.

The Rev. Mr. Morton, of Illinois, began revival services Sunday evening at Hunker and will continue them for some time.

Dealer Praises Weaver Piano.

Mr. G. C. Aschbach, one of the most substantial dealers in eastern Pennsylvania, writes as follows to the manufacturers of the Weaver Piano: "You have indeed a piano that you can well feel proud of. It compares very favorably with anything we have on our floor, and you know we handle a number of the finest makes. As long as you make so excellent a piano you certainly deserve the patronage of the legitimate dealer who still strives to uphold the dignity of the music business." Mr. Aschbach has made a life study of pianos and knows whereof he speaks. His opinion can be trusted without risk. Send for catalogue of this modern aristocrat among pianos.

Public Sale!

Valuable Mill Property
at Mount Pleasant.

Wednesday, Nov. 14, 1906.

The Mount Pleasant Milling Company will on that day offer at public outcry the Mount Pleasant Roller Mills, Acme Facing Mill, and 2½ acres of land, all adjoining the borough of Mount Pleasant and on P. R. R. siding and West Penn main trolley line and within a few minutes' walk of P. R. R. and B. & O. depots.

The Roller Mills are three stories, strong frame, with stone basement 50x90 feet. They have the Allis equipment and a daily capacity of 125 barrels. The daily capacity of the Facing Mill is 40 tons.

Both these plants have been idle for some time, but are in good condition and could be put in operation in a few days, or could be changed at small cost for different manufactures, while the location of the land is most desirable for manufacturing sites.

Sale will begin at 1 p. m. when the different properties will be sold as a whole or separately to suit purchasers.
